Association Between Body Mass Index and Atrial Fibrillation Risk in the General Population of Nurses in the China Kadoorie Biobank Cohort. Obesity is associated with atrial fibrillation (AF), but the relationship between obesity and AF risk in the general population is less understood. We aimed to examine the associations between body mass index (BMI) and AF risk in the China Kadoorie Biobank cohort. A total of 488,665 adults aged 30-79 years were enrolled in 2004 and followed up for 10 years. AF risk was assessed by the cumulative incidence of AF incidence. The relationship between BMI and AF incidence was examined by Cox proportional hazard model, and the hazard ratios (HRs) for AF incidence across BMI categories were derived. During the 10-year follow-up, 1,395 new cases of AF were identified. The unadjusted HR for incident AF was 1.16 (95% CI 1.10-1.22, Pimport React from 'react'; import PropTypes from 'prop-types'; import { Form } from 'antd'; class FormWithMultipleInputs extends React.Component { static

As a lithographic process in manufacturing semiconductor devices, a process using a lithographic printing plate has been prevalently used. In recent years, in accordance with progress of high-density integration and size reduction of a semiconductor device, a printing plate suitable for fine processing to a substrate, such as a wafer, has been demanded. As a method for such fine processing, a lithographic printing method has been considered. As an example of the printing method, a method using a lithographic printing plate is described. In the lithographic printing method, 2d92ce491b
