Compose and break a layout to fit the screen of the computer you are using. It is a lightweight and reliable application that lets you quickly compose and break a page to fit the screen of the computer you are using. Compose and break a page to fit the screen of the computer you are using. Layout Maker is a small yet effective program that offers a quick and convenient way to compose and break a page to fit the screen of the computer you are using. It can be used for desktop, laptop, PocketPC, CD, or DVD devices. Layout Maker Description: Developing useful and professional-looking charts and graphs is the cornerstone of any solid report writing program. A useful, professional-looking report usually contains a variety of charts and graphs to convey the data contained in the text. Producing such charts and graphs is no easy task and requires dedication and creativity. While there are plenty of freeware applications that will enable you to produce some basic charts and graphs, designing more professional-looking charts and graphs can be a real pain. That is why I am happy to recommend you the Free Tools suite, which is designed to make such jobs easier and faster. Free Tools Description: You don't have to fuss around with big, unwieldy software packages to find and delete duplicate files. Duplicate File Finder uses a simple interface to present you with a list of your disk's files, allowing you to browse quickly to find files that are the same or that are only slightly different. Once you have found the files you want, you can delete them one by one or select them all at once and click the Delete Selected button. Although the program's interface might seem a little bare at first, it's extremely simple to use, as the basic functions are all it has to offer. This is not only a great tool for Windows users but also one of the most useful software packages for Mac users as well. Duplicate File Finder Description: Extract files to your hard disk or network with one mouse click. XTRACT allows you to extract files to a hard disk or network with one mouse click. You can choose files or folders by dragging them into the program window, or you can load files from a list. XTRACT supports drag and drop file transfer, file selection from a list, and incremental extraction. When you first start the program, you are prompted to specify a folder into which XTR

KEYMACRO enables you to define the MAC address of any network card. The MAC address is the unique string of bits that identifies every computer on the network. MAC addresses are used in networks that have a unique identifier for each computer. This can help avoid conflicts on a network because computers are assigned unique identifiers instead of having numbers, making it easy to distinguish them from other computers. MAC addresses are used to identify specific devices connected to a network. As a network device is assigned a unique number, the MAC address should also be unique. The program includes various options that allow you to specify the address format, depending on the type of network adapter. The program can be run from the command line (DOS prompt) or from the Windows task bar. Before running the program, you must set the computer into "Restart Mode" using the keyboard hotkey (F8). Once the program is running, you can right-click the task bar and choose a MAC address from the available options. For more information on using the program, please see the KEYMACRO Tutorial section below. KEYMACRO Tutorial 1. To find out which MAC address you are using, open the Windows task bar (in Windows XP and Windows Vista) or the Apple menu bar (in OS X). 2. Click on the 'Start' button. 3. Click on the 'Run' menu. 4. In the Open box, type the following: - C:\Windows\System32\drivers\pkey.sys 5. Click OK. NOTE: The 'pkey.sys' file is a Windows system file that is part of the 'System32' folder. 6. Click OK. 7. Click on the 'pkey.sys' file and the 'Make sure the data is safe' box should appear. 8. Click OK. 9. The default MAC address is shown in the 'Text File' box. You can now click on the default MAC address and change it using the 'Mac Address' option. 10. Enter a new MAC address in the 'Text File' box using the format shown below. Note: If the MAC address contains '0x', you will need to remove the '0x' using the 'Remove 0x' option. 11. When you have entered the MAC address, click OK. 12. Click OK to exit the file. 2. To save the new MAC address, click on the 'Yes 77a5ca646e
